

This document provides a user manual for the Tiny BMS s516 battery management system. It describes the hardware structure and components of the Tiny BMS, including connectors for cell voltages, temperature sensors, current sensors and communication.

If you're adhering to the FSAE rules, using Orion BMS thermistors and Energus modules this cannot work. The thermistors cannot meet rule EV.8.5.4 which state: "The temperature sensor used must be in direct contact with one of: -negative terminal itself -The negative terminal busbar less than 10 mm away from the cell terminal";.

Yes, our team built one of these. I would recommend using an LTC BMS IC as recommended by Energus in the datasheet, which can communicate the temperature values over I2C communication to a microcontroller. You will need a microcontroller that can receive I2C, and communicate over CAN as well. Orion also has documents available (and the software ...

Developing a BMS sound simple, but its not. I think for the first few years any team should use a off the shelf bms. You can develop a solid bms with 2 good & experienced People in one Season. Our BMS Software is by far the most complex embedded Software in our Car.

More powerful e-bikes or things like electric tractors, electric boats, electric motorcycles, off grid solar batteries, and powerwalls with lithium chemistry will likely need a more sophisticated and powerful solution, and that's where the Energus Tiny BMS comes in. The Tiny BMS is, as its name implies, very small.

voltages, manages load and charging switches, performs cell balancing, and calculates state of charge.

So far, I'm looking at different BMS solutions. Will this work for my purpose: https:// Specifications. Series cells: 4 to 16 (6 to 16 for LTO) Cell voltage: 0.80 to 4.50 V; Cell balancing: 150 mA, dissipative; Discharge/Regen current peak: 150 A** Discharge/Regen current sustained: 60 A**

Up to 64 channel temperature sensors (available in Energus Cell Modules) * - with external relays and current sensor ** - given that BMS is mounted on cool metal surface. Questions: 1. It seems like sustain discharge is 60A. This is about 1440w correct? Can I run a basic welding machine on this that works normally on 110v/15A power.

From reading other team's papers and posts on the sub, it seems a lot of teams use Energus cells with an Orion BMS. ... Had an Energus cell (Li1x5pVTC6T) lying around so I hooked up the temperature sensor to test it out. 680 Ohm pullup and a power supply to supply the sensor with 3-4V. My multimeter gives 1.94V over the sensor and IR ...

I'm seeking a proper 16S BMS and that seem the ONLY one that can properly manage a battery pack as you can actually monitor each cell voltage, you can also adjust a lot of parameter like overvoltage and I'm trying to find anyone who can relate their experience in using any of the &quot;Tiny BMS&quot; products from Energus Power Solutions. I've searched through the forums without much success. Searching "Tiny" and "BMS" gets a bunch of posts on unrelated subjects.

One BMS failure happened before I was on the team, and a small IC (can't ID it) on the bottom of the board seems to have exploded. Another BMS failure happened recently with no physical symptoms on the board, when we were making some wiring changes. ... We've tried reaching out to Energus for both support for these failures and to enquire about ...
