Equatorial Guinea receives moderate levels of solar irradiation of 4.3 kWh/m<sup>2</sup>/day and specific yield of 3.7 kWh/ kWp/day indicating a moderate technical feasibility for solar in the country. Equatorial Guinea has installed a self-sufficient solar microgrid system with 5 MW solar modules for a reliable power

Aptech Africa installed 11 solar systems in 11 different villages of 5kWp, 15kWp, and 20kWp with battery energy storage of 12kWh, 15kWh, and 36kWh respectively. One of the systems is a hybrid system and the rest are standalone systems working alongside a generator and existing grid.

Equatorial Guinea continues to score poorly on social and economic development indicators, and economic conditions have worsened when global oil prices are low. Some foreign workers are subject to passport confiscation and forced labor. Corrupt officials are often complicit in human trafficking, according to the US State Department.

In 2020, Equatorial Guinea also promoted the arrival on its territory of AfriOne, the 100% African brand of electronics manufactured at the country's first technological hardware assembly plant. Located in the port of Bata, it opened on October 13 and has already started selling its first cell phones, tablets or tech gadgets.

After becoming independent from Spain in 1968, Equatorial Guinea was ruled by President for life Francisco Macías Nguema until he was overthrown in a coup in 1979 by his nephew Teodoro Obiang Nguema Mbasogo, who has served as the country's president since. Both have widely been characterised as corrupt dictators. [2] [3] [4]Equatorial Guinea's government is ...
